

Contents

Abbreviations	vii
Acknowledgements	viii
Introduction	ix
1 Why Islamic finance?	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 The origins: Maulana Maududi	1
1.3 Digression: the Islamization of the financial system in Pakistan; a chequered history	4
1.4 Islam against the rest of the world?	5
1.5 Conclusions	8
2 Sources of Islamic law	10
2.1 Introduction	10
2.2 Primary and secondary sources	10
2.3 Law schools	15
2.4 How strict should one be in observing the sharia ?	17
2.5 Muslims among a non-Muslim majority	20
2.6 Conclusions	23
3 The Islamic economy	25
3.1 Introduction	25
3.2 Zakat	27
3.3 Riba	31
3.4 Gharar and maysir	45
3.5 The economic order	48
3.6 Dreams of a separate Muslim economy	49
3.7 Conclusions	50
4 Financial instruments	52
4.1 Introduction	52
4.2 Halal instruments	53
4.3 Grey areas	67
4.4 Islamic contract law	75
4.5 Conclusions	79
5 Islamic banks	81
5.1 Introduction	81
5.2 The liabilities of Islamic banks	81

5.3	Problems with Islamic assets	84
5.4	The practice of Islamic banking	92
5.5	Conclusions	99
6	Special sectors	102
6.1	Introduction	102
6.2	Insurance	102
6.3	Home finance	106
6.4	Investment	113
6.5	Conclusions	118
7	Public finance and the monetary authorities	121
7.1	Introduction	121
7.2	Public finance	122
7.3	Monetary policy	124
7.4	Supervision of the financial sector	128
7.5	Conclusions	132
8	Islamic finance: a tentative verdict	134
8.1	Introduction	134
8.2	Pros and cons in comparison with conventional finance	134
8.3	The demand for Islamic financial products	141
8.4	Islamic finance: hopes fulfilled?	144
Appendices		147
A	The Quran on riba	147
B	The Quran on maysir	148
C	The Bible on interest	148
D	Useful web addresses	150
References		152
Glossary		172
Index		177