

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I wish to express gratitude to some very special people who contributed significantly to the preparation of this work.

First I thank my partners at Moye Giles LLP for giving me the professional support and encouragement I needed to take the time to work on this book. I also thank our outstanding corporate paralegals at the firm for their excellence and proficiency in the practice of business organizations, much of which they will recognize in some of the forms and checklists used in the book.

I gratefully acknowledge the contributions of other authors, government officials, and corporate personnel for the forms and checklists used as examples.

I am indebted and grateful to Glenna McKelvy, my executive legal assistant, for her assistance and dedication in the preparation of the manuscript and in managing my schedule to accommodate my many clients while this edition was in process. Thanks to Gary Weitzel, our law firm Knowledge Manager, for his help with Uniform Acts and Web-based access to forms and statutes.

Last, but certainly not least, I thank my many family members, friends, and associates who appear as characters in the sample clauses throughout the book. Their assent to join the case of business personalities in the various transactions adds a flavor of realism and is sincerely appreciated.
